CANCER

June 23-July 23

The every day things of life and the people you see practically every day will make demands on your time out of all proportion to their importance, during the first part of September. If, at the time of the full moon on the 5th, there seems to be a conspiracy to force you to change your mind on an issue close to your heart, or to postpone travel plans, try to preserve an unruffled exterior, and reflect that 'little misfits are wounded by the smallest things'. Perhaps it is because your relatives do really matter to you a great deal that they have the power to wound you; just this once, don't give them the satisfaction of seeing this. Uranus, the planet of change and revolution, has been in Libra, which represents your home, for some long time now. Because both Saturn and Mars form excellent aspects to it this month, domestic changes are not only inevitable, but should be beneficial too — you would be foolhardy to resist them.

Dearest Debbie
I've been thinking about you these times & I have - last night I dreamt that I fell off the back of a motorcycle ridden & owned by Mr. Pleasant and crapped my pants - & woke up cramped and yellow
at 6 o'clock this morning - Strange day -

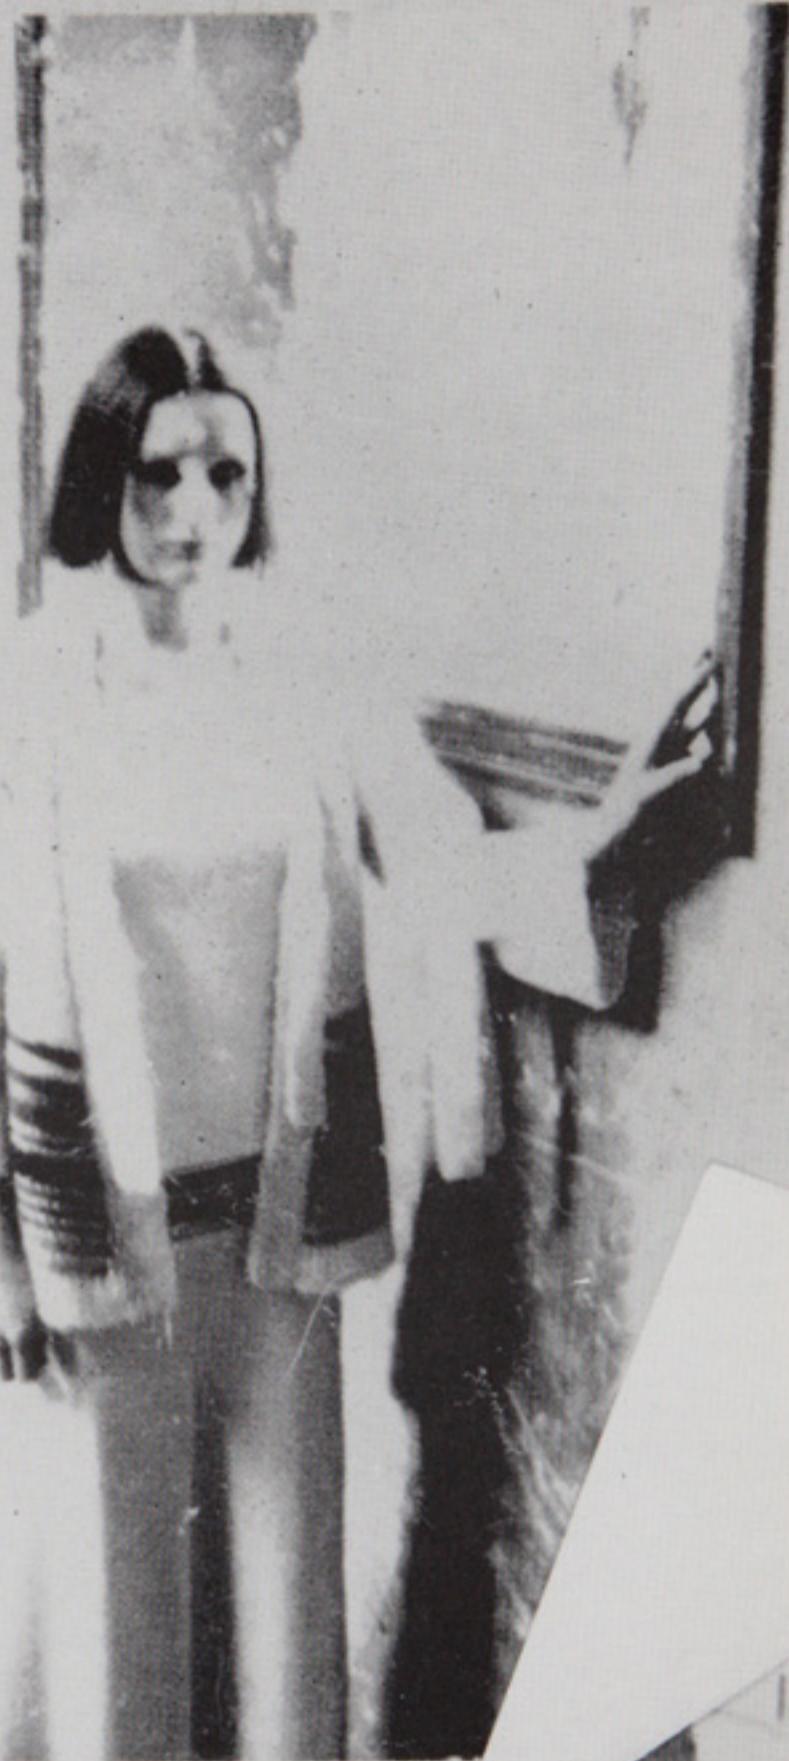

Bob was shocked and upset by suicide. I feel that New York is a house of Death - people shatter there so easily - evil gets into the bloodstream - unhappiness is more catching than laughter at all times so that if there is no laughter at all anymore in a place it swarms and becomes stagnant with hopelessness. I'm so glad I've left. It's a much happier life I'm leading, and much happier people I'm seeing outside in the street.

Chad Captive

By JAMES F. CLARITY
Special to The New York Times

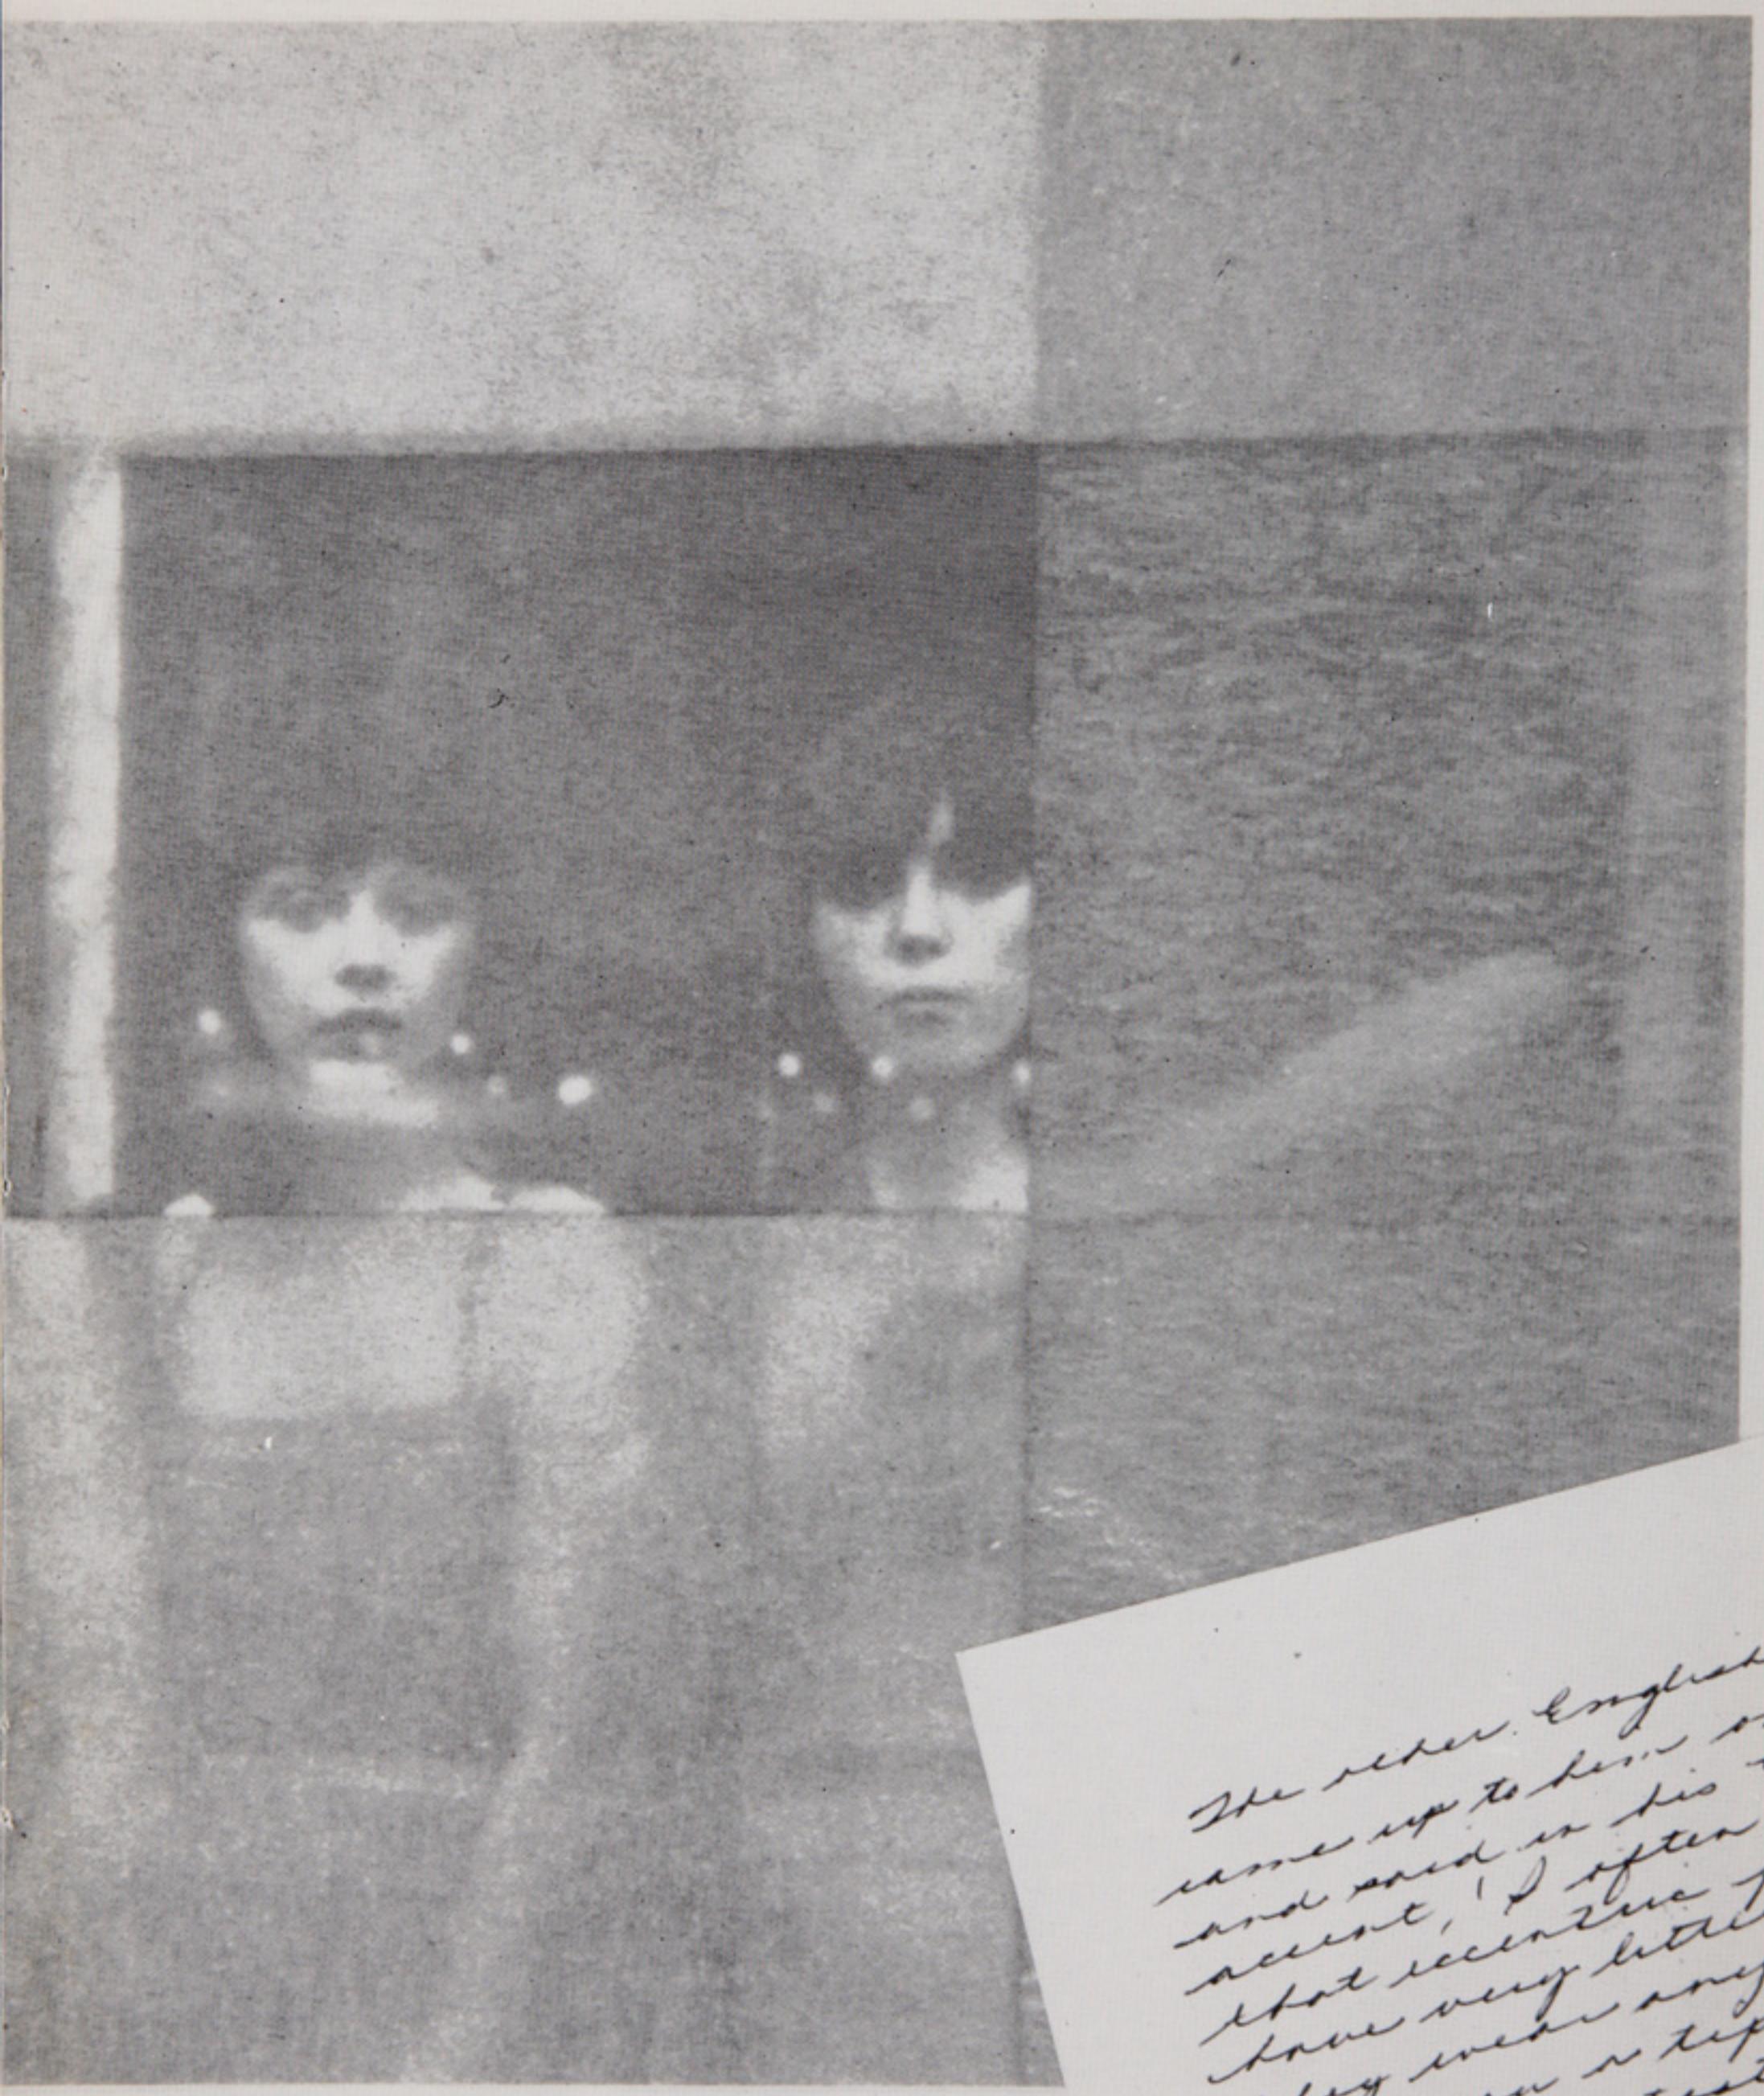

PARIS, Sept. 13.—For the last 17 months, Francoise Claustre, a 38-year-old French archeologist and anthropologist, has been held hostage by a relatively small band of rebels on the edge of the Sahara in northern Chad.

She is captive in a straw-roofed hut in a rebel settlement in the barren Tibesti region, south of Libya. She has been living on rice, vegetable oil and tomatoes and hoping that officials back in Paris would do something to free her before Sept. 23, the date the rebels have set for her execution if their ransom demands are not met.

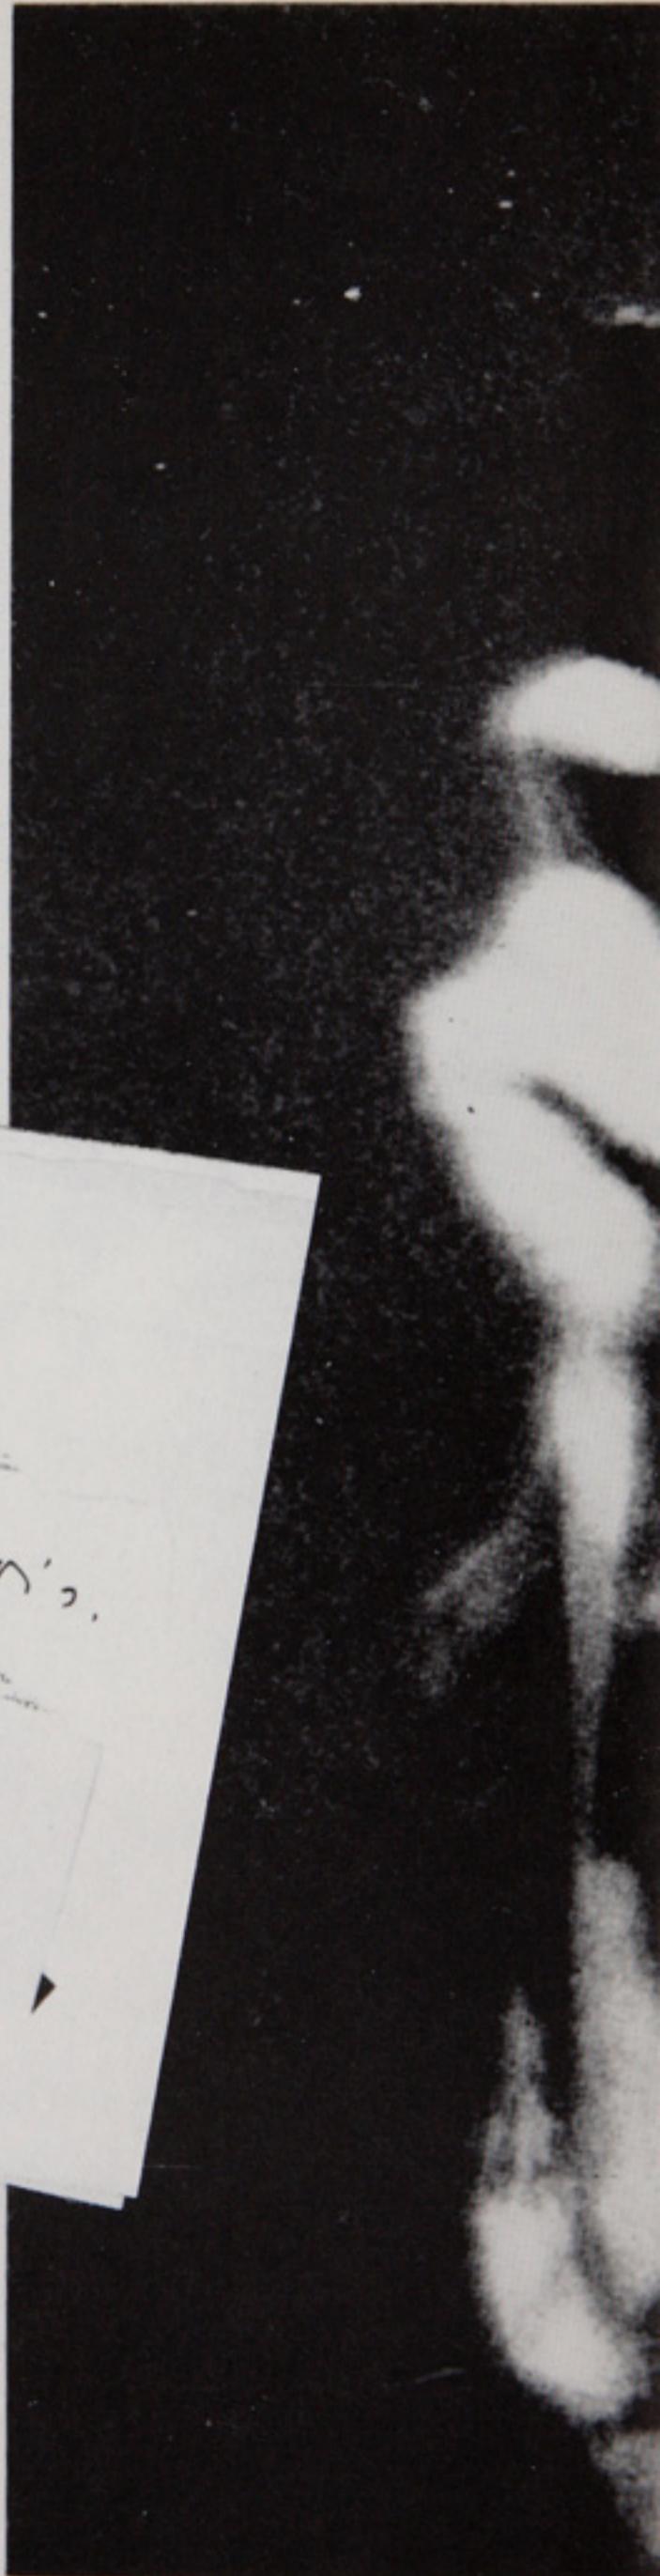

For months the Government in Paris has dawdled, apparently not wanting to annoy the Chad Government of Gen. Felix Malloum by meeting the rebel demands for $2.4-million, some of it in

Dear Debbie,
I've had my article and your photograph of Miss Kadomobile - a fourth reject returned to me by Mademoiselle - so I focused my attention elsewhere. I'm sorry that it didn't go further - to my own, I mean. I was in Xavier's salon the other day and very much enjoyed his work. I hope all your other work progresses well.
Sincerely,

How is your bird and how is your apartment? - You must come over here soon - the weather has been so beautiful for the past few days, and Jerry has been out in the garden behind the hotel constantly playing in the sunshine with two texan midgets he picked up in the lobby like dwarfs. I mean - (two very strange little gones -)

How are you? I'm in a blue haze at the moment. I'm feeling sort of efficient and together on the exterior, with all sorts of little nagging things going on in the interior like 'I must go and try to get a passport at the Polish Embassy; and find a flat, and then another flat ...'
speaking, I'm etc.
